Liberia Outreach Camp

Hawa was surprised by what she encountered at Young Life camp. Hawa grew up in a Muslim family-her father is an Islamic priest, and she's attended Arabic school to learn the Quran for the past five years. Hawa's experience with Christianity was limited, so when she was invited to attend Young Life camp, she didn't know what to expect. "I saw so much freedom, love, acceptance and fun among everyone. I think this is the right way to serve God. When I heard the speaker saying 'Jesus is the light and He wants to shine in you,' I was touched."

"I believe Jesus is the true light and I want to know him more."

Nigeria Sports Camp

Tinuke, now 16 years old, lost her parents in a motor accident when she was just four years old. After suffering years of abuse from her uncle, Tinuke felt so alone and fell into a deep depression. She lost hope, hated herself and stopped hanging out with friends.

Her leader, Evangeline, invited Tinuke to Young Life club. That day Tinuke was moved to tears, choosing to confide in Evangeline. Since then, Evangeline has shown her nothing but love, and has been consistent in caring for Tinuke. This summer, Tinuke found hope and gave her life to Christ at camp.

"I am happy to be in the midst of people who see me as a special person."

Ghana Outreach Camp

Before joining Young Life and encountering Jesus, Kojo used to fight in the streets and refused to go to school. A Young Life leader invited him to a Young Life club and Kojo's behavior began to change. He went back to school and stopped fighting. In July he went to camp, where he decided to accept Christ and start a relationship with Him. He promised to find a church, read the Bible daily and go to Club to learn more about Jesus. Kono's parents are happy with him now and are happy to be part of the Young Life family.

Transformation in Cameroon

16 year-old Gerald is very active in Campaigners. However, before meeting Christ, he was involved in many behaviors such as stealing, disrespecting his family, and fighting with other teens in his village. Many of his peers avoided him because of this. His leaders kept meeting with him and decided to keep him on their prayer list for him to change and receive Christ. In answer to these prayers, Gerald accepted Christ and turned from his bad habits. His family also accepted Jesus Christ and asked leaders to help them study the Bible each week. Glory to God!
